

The Brewing Expert

Compared to the automation systems of other manufacturers on the market, which do not provide for manual intervention in the control process, Joh. Albrecht has developed an automation system especially for a flexible design of the brewing process for the craft brewers and the industry.

The uncomplicated intervention in the system structure of the control system allows individual design. With alternative control applications this is almost impossible due to the complexity of the interlocking steps, too time-consuming or too costly because an external programmer has to be called in.

To make a long story short – your advantages with our control:

- No programming skills required
- High flexibility
- Simple intervention in the control process
- Easy remote maintenance
- Individual editing of the brewing parameters
- Individual visualization
- Control with IOS or Android
